HISTORICAL NOTE

There was settlement in the area which is now York County as early as 1855 as evidenced by the charter of a proposed town of Lawrence, March 15, 1855, which was never developed. A stage stop existed near the Hamilton County line named Porcupine Bluffs. McDonald Ranch, a freight and stage station on Beaver Creek was established in 1864. The first post office established in the county was at McFadden but was discontinued in April of 1884.

York County was officially organized in April of 1870. The census for that year sited the population at 640 persons. It presently encompasses an area of 576 square miles and is bounded by Polk, Hamilton, Seward, and Fillmore counties. York city became the county seat. It was platted October 18, 1869 and a post office was opened on August 22, 1870. The town was named by residents of York County, Pennsylvania. The first courthouse was erected in 1872. The first population figures available give the population of York in 1880 at 1,259. In 1910 the population was 6,235 and presently (1990) it is 7,884 while the county population in 1990 is 14,428 persons.
